

S. E. Pelphry reports that the new round house will be ready for use in fifteen days, but on account of the slow arrival of material from the Alamogordo lumber mills he was unable to say at what date the shops would be completed. The shops and round house are to be the second largest on the Southwestern Railroad. The largest being at El Paso.

The Eagle Cornice Works is increasing the size of its building.

H. L. Hammins of Rocky, Okla., spent a few days here during the early part of the week. He invested in real estate.

Many republicans and good citizens generally have approved the editorial in last week's issue of the Register-Tribune in regard to the president's responsibility for the government of New Mexico under the administration of Gov. Curry. They believe in Roosevelt, in his fairness and common sense, and with an executive like the appointee, they know that we will have a clean and forceful management. That is what we should want, and that is what we are going to get.—Register-Tribune.

Mrs. J. D. Echols, who arrived here from Oklahoma two weeks ago, after traveling for her health, with her husband and children, died yesterday at noon.

G. H. Cooper of Dodson was in the city Thursday on business.

C. E. Dutro of Montrose, Mo., is in the city for a few days. He has been visiting his father at Montoya.

The Tucumcari News is pleased to see Nathan Jaffa get the position of Lieutenant Governor or Secretary of New Mexico. He is certainly a capable and trustworthy gentleman and will not disappoint Governor Curry or the people of New Mexico in rendering the service expected of him in this high office.

Rockefeller says that he "began life with fifty dollars and a disposition to be honest." Some people are suspicious that his seniority has witnessed a change from his juvenile disposition.

T. W. Begley who lives nine miles east of Tucumcari was in Thursday to make application for final proof on his homestead. He tells the News that he has eight acres of cotton that will make one half bale per acre. He is simply experimenting with cotton to see what it will do in this climate and has reached the decision it is going to be a success and the money crop for the farmer. He will plant a large acreage of cotton next year.
